HOW TO THINK LIKE A MODERN MYSTIC

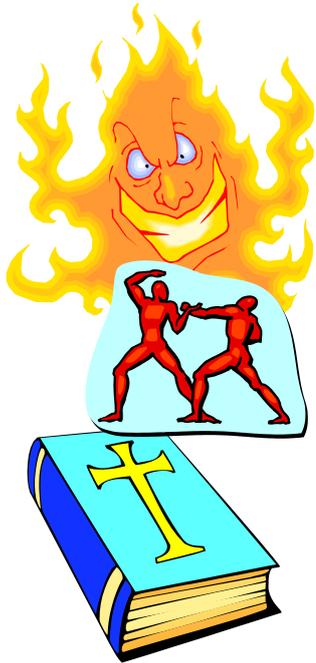

How can you think like a modern mystic? How does an ancient mystic think? The variations are huge and complex, but the simplistic truth is to think on a higher level. To clear the mind of all thoughts is an extremely difficult exercise. The old ways were to flog the body with a strap letting the tremendous pain release all thoughts. Today meditation is the preferred method. Many will stay on the middle ground almost straying through life and never witnessing anything different. The middle ground is the preferred place to be whether a millionaire or poor. It is easier to climb upwards from the middle and return, even to plunge down and return, but from bottom to the top causes misery and great effort. Personal circumstances and religion are irrelevant to mystic thought.

One of the qualities needed to create mysticism is that the heart and head must be full of unrequited love. This love is hard to sustain in a world of thoughts that advocate jealousy, hate, selfishness, monetary gain, self-desire, and opulence. A glimpse of this love to any individual in the present life is only occasionally fleetingly encountered. Materialistic good deeds created with passion for satisfying a personal psyche does in no way equate with pure love. Personal thoughts and desires are difficult to eradicate because they are a constituent of life. Living in the present day is being driven towards materialistic self-achievement with less emphasis on spiritual growth; the meaning of spirituality in this sense excludes earthly religion. Governments promote this ethos of the material that could destroy the shaky foundations of a democratic, modern society.

A most-profound question asked is, why are we here? After the daily chores of work and the joys of leisure we would all like to know the answer. Is it just to create more life? Is it to test us in an environment where destruction of physical flesh can be envisaged and executed? The answer is quite simple.

In this world, some of the metaphysical religions are at war with each other. The generated spiritual void created is of fundamental human desires that propagate both good and evil. Ancient church teachings advocate that to kill is a sin thus plunging some modern day faiths into a quagmire of contradictions. The true religion is what you feel in your heart led by pure love. Therefore, in respect to mysticism, actual worldly religion is unattainable because it is written by man. Views and beliefs can be accomplished by achievement of a semblance of purity to become a better person.

The threshold of mysticism is what is right and what is wrong. To establish this criterion is complicated and gray areas can exist in between. It is right to constantly increase electricity charges otherwise the company will go bankrupt. It is wrong to constantly increase electricity prices because the consumer is suffering and may freeze to death. Here, both statements are correct so we must enter the gray area. Can the electricity company afford to bring down the charges without going bankrupt? Is the consumer suffering? In this case, a mystical thinker will rule what is right: yes; prices can come down without harming the company: yes, the consumer is suffering and finding it hard to pay their bills. Referring back to the original question; yes, it is wrong to constantly increase electricity prices.

The benefactor of mysticism at some point in life should for a brief moment acquire the rapture of supreme bliss. This is called - reaching a nirvana. It is unbelievable, spiritual, unexplainable and mystic.

THE ANSWER IS TO FIND

The REAL YOU !

Find out in this new e-book titled - How to think like a modern mystic - gives answers to these questions and many more.

Mystic thoughts are different and take into account the individual identity of self that embodies the originality of the human complex making each situation unique to oneself. The inspiration of the purification of thought is a mighty power of which to embrace and aspire.

One of the aims of mysticism is doing what is right regardless that wrong is usually the procedure. Such is the case in politics where many of the elected representatives follow the dictates of worldly power even though it is wrong for the electorate and the country. Have you ever sat down and contemplated your ideas of what true religion really consists of to yourself personally?

Can you think of any supernatural incidents in your life that are unexplainable? We all tend to ignore the unexplainable, but it is still deep in our subconscious.
