How to keep the world safe - Lessons from History

CONCEPT of FASCISM

The formation of a one-party totalitarian dictatorship against democracy to prepare for armed conflict and economic difficulties. War is acceptable to achieve nationalistic goals with the procedure of an aggressive control of business and labour without opposition. These policies include the glorification of the military with the creation of foreign policies by a dictator controlling a military hierarchy.

Lessons from history – fascism and appeasement 1930's.

Appeasement in a political context is a strategic policy of making political or material concessions to an enemy power to avoid conflict.

James Ramsay MacDonald Labour Party, MacDonald had a strong traditional pacifist sentiment and forced a reduction in the military and naval budgets.

Arthur Neville Chamberlain – Conservative - Chamberlain is best known for his appeasement foreign policy in seeking to conciliate Germany and make the Nazi state a partner in a stable Europe.

He indicated that he saw the lessening of the tension between this country and Italy as a valuable contribution toward the pacification and appeasement of Europe.

The Prime Minister also set up a private line of communication with the Italian Benito Mussolini.

Chamberlain addressed the nation by radio, and after thanking those who wrote to him, stated:

How horrible, fantastic, incredible it is that we should be digging trenches and try on gas-masks here because of a quarrel in a far-away country between people of whom we know nothing. It seems still more impossible that a quarrel already settled in principle should be the subject of war.

He requested a private conference with Hitler urging restraint in the implementation of the agreement and requested that the Germans not bomb Prague if the Czechs resisted, to which Hitler seemed agreeable. Chamberlain took from his pocket a paper headed 'Anglo-German Agreement', which contained three paragraphs including a statement that the two nations considered the Munich Agreement symbolic of the desire of our two people never to go to war again. Hitler eagerly said "Yes – Yes. Then the two men signed the paper.

Ribbentrop asked why Hitler had signed such an agreement and he replied, "Oh, don't take it so seriously. That piece of paper is of no further significance."

Landing in England, Chamberlain waved the agreement in the air to the cameras in jubilation.

CONCEPT OF COMMUNISM

A theoretical economic system characterised by the collective ownership of property and by the organisation of labour for the common advantage of all members. A system of government in which the state plans and controls the economy and a single, often authoritarian party holds power, claiming to make progress toward a higher social order in which all goods equally shared by the people.

The major productive resources in a society such as mines, factories, and farms owned by the public or the state, and wealth divided among citizens equally or according to individual need.

The Marxist-Leninist doctrine advocates revolution to overthrow the capitalistic system and establish a dictatorship of the proletariat that will eventually evolve into a perfectly egalitarian and communal society.

Lessons from history – Communism.

Communism does not fit into the world financial capitalist markets and as a result becomes isolated.

A state organised by a totalitarian dictator or committee but not all are equal. As with capitalism, the elite of the party receives more pay.

The USSR ruled on the surface by a genial dictator of the communist state but underneath brutality and bloodlust and murdering all communists or others not believing in the party line. Thousands of people executed under the rule of Stalin and over a million disappeared under the communist regime.

The Chinese state was a series of warring factions that converted to communism to unify the country. Ruled first by a dictator and then a committee they are the only communists successfully integrating into the world capitalist financial markets.

CONCEPT of RELIGIONISM

An excessive or affected religious zeal established by extreme religious fervour causing the corrupt intolerance of one's religion. It allows the darkness in the soul to outweigh the conscience.

Lessons from history – RELIGIONISM.

Leaving behind the dark days of radical Christianity when Popes made war on unbelievers and rode in armour to smite non-Christians with the sword and devised inquisitions with barbaric tortures, we reach the last century. The radical Islamist suddenly surfaced with ferocity, comparing to fascism and communism. The 1900's reached the peak of human atrocities with an idealistic communist rebellion against the remaining aristocrats in Russia. In Japan 1931 Araki, a political philosopher with the army introduced Koda a concept linking Emperor, the people, land, and morality as indivisible. The creation of a new Shinto religion linking the present with the ancient past led to a spiritual training of the army that turned into Emperor Worship. To counteract the corrupt politicians in power the Emperor would rule as a Demigod assisted by the military.

Japan now in a military expansionist mode had now released some of the most compelling threads of the new Shinto religion, and as in ancient Rome, a Demigod cannot be challenged. Religionism now introduced Kamikaze (the divine wind) into the war, and the suicide pilot became infamous in the tradition of death instead of defeat or capture.

Into the 21st century, the expansionist desires are now one of the ultimate aims of the purveyors of radical Islamic Religionism. In their minds, nothing but twisted views exists to perpetuate the darkness of the soul. Like the Shinto religion, they are told that they will emerge into a heavenly paradise. What twisted elder minds feed such trash to the young? The world watched almost as if afraid to condemn because it had a religious base. Nothing was done at first to stop this atrocious expansionism as it moved to take two countries.

ISIS Religionism looks for a person who feels downtrodden with a grievance in society, whether educated or not and brainwashes them into action. The younger the person is, the easier the transition.

SOME CONCLUSIONS from HISTORY.

Appeasers try to make peace, again and again even though their warring participants do not believe in it. The avoidance of war is exemplary but unsustainable as it allows enemies to build up their strength and ignore treaties, thus the advance of Nazis and ISIS. Communism developed into guerrilla warfare in Vietnam.

The capital financial institutes of the world make fascism and communism difficult to exist although partial communism to nationalise a failing public facility is sometimes required.

The expansion of Fascism is overcome by war.

Religionism perpetuated by the use of guerrilla tactics not to be fought in the open but only by the use of subterfuge and surprise. The do-gooders inadvertently help them to succeed by the use of liberalism and the quoting of human rights even though ISIS tactics are inhuman. War cannot be fought like an Angel, only like a devil, to ensure that the democracy of millions is not reduced to dark religious slavery.

Indoctrination commences upon an individual after they have openly expressed grievances against the way they live and the government or country. The religious theme is necessary for a re-education by people with powerful wicked Islamic convictions.

A British Prime Minister must never be blinkered by a personal agenda. The pacifist, CND enthusiast, an appeaser, will appear weak even to small countries. These countries know that they can motivate talk after talk without conclusion while covertly expanding.

We should be on the lookout for extreme expansionists like North Korea. The next step after the conclusion of atomic weaponry may be to try and take over the whole of Korea.

Communism rarely justifies its concepts and degenerates into totalitarianism ruled by a dictator or dictatorial committee without democracy.

Extreme capitalism allows people to make enormous personal fortunes far more than normality at the expense of others. It nourishes greed, over-ambition, excessive gambling, and ignores the plight of the starving or low paid. It is also subject to massive financial crashes caused by the elite.
