Let's discuss

What can we do about security?

The hardest question anyone could ask today. How can we protect our beliefs, stop these vile murders, and retain our freedoms and democracy? The answer: within well constructed, believable and acceptable legislation that becomes law. The extremists are at war with the British way of life revealing a wicked hierarchy belief that their God needs them to kill and maim all unbelievers. The religious doctrine is then placed on the internet for all to see and the internet giants find it difficult to suppress. It should be taken off immediately as the radicals are achieving what the WW2 Nazi propaganda never did, brainwashing the young with evil ideology. It is unfortunate but necessary that anyone advising others to kill and others listening should be investigated and assessed by several qualified independent psychologists who must all be in agreement. Communities should fight this devastating evil by reporting any such incidents. Only on assessment on assessment can the danger be realised after the full democratic procedure in front of a Magistrate.

The security forces and police should not need to be afraid of interviewing at a local level without arrest anyone they think has been radicalised.
